NAZIS ROLLING SLOWLY AHEAD

Paris May Be Spared Destruction In War; Declared "Open City"

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

France promised to fight on to the bitter end—if the government is forced to flee to North Africa or even to its possessions in the American hemisphere—as German armies hammered new holes today in a 200 mile front on both sides of Paris and behind the Maginot line.

Despite the rushing of every man and gun that Britain could muster for the new expeditionary force in France and despite new blows by Allied bombing planes on a wide front, the German offensive rolled ahead slowly but crushingly.

Directly before Paris, the German encircling movement squeezed the defending armies unceasingly and the French posted statements intended to make the main part of the capital an open city. Thus it appeared that they would fight on in the suburbs before Paris but if forced back there they would avoid defending the heart of the city and hope that the Germans would not seek to destroy it.

Italy still was playing a minor role in the conflict, although British sources reported that Italian troops had been sent into Germany two weeks before the declaration of war.

Turkey continued war preparations and one report said that an "important announcement" regarding the war was imminent.

Nimrods To Note Club Birthday

Second Annual Summer Outing This Weekend Has Anniversary Theme

Let there be light.

When the El Dorado County Rod and Gun Club members meet this weekend at Wentworth Springs for their second annual mid-summer outing, they'll be needing lanterns, and all who attend are asked to take a lantern with them, if they have one.

The outing, Saturday and Sunday, will give recognition to the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Rod and Gun Club. Only forty actual reservations are on file but preparations are being made for sixty, except for the steak dinner on Saturday night. For the dinner, preparations are being made to serve those who have made reservations, so those who have not registered and who plan to attend had better get their names in the pot.

The $2 registration fee will cover the Saturday night dinner and breakfast Sunday morning any time it is requested.

Chrysolite Lodge Plans Card Party June 18th

Members of Chrysolite Rebekah lodge, of Diamond Springs, will give their regular card party for the month of June on Tuesday evening, June 18.

At a social occasion afterward the birthday anniversaries of Julia Mayhew and Mary Forsythe were remembered. There were between twenty-five and thirty in attendance.

CAPTURE OF PARIS SECONDARY IN MINDS OF GERMANS

Nazi Strategy, Anticipating Fall Of French Capital, Seeks To Trap Weygand's Command With Flanking Movement, Says Expert

By J. W. T. MASON

UNITED PRESS WAR EXPERT

Intensified German pressure is being exerted to drive the right wing of the Allied army back up on itself for the purpose of confining Weygand's area of operations and heading off any retreat eastward toward the protective terrain of the Argonne. The operations for the capture of Paris have now become in effect secondary, while the German high command is preparing for a decision to follow the anticipated capitulation of the capital.

The primary German pressure now seems to be developing along the Marne, following the capture of Reims. The Germans claim they have taken Chalons, 26 miles southeast of Reims, which shows a major movement temporarily away from Paris, not toward it. The purpose is to swing around the Allies right flank. If this new strategic plan shows success, the next advance of the Germans should be toward Vitry Le Francois, southeast of Chalons, where the canal connecting the Marne river with the Rhine begins.

Should Weygand not be able to block the German operation he will have to send his right wing westward toward Paris or else risk the thinning of his line too much by retreating southeastward away from the Argonne. The situation is difficult for him but not yet precarious if the Germans themselves are reaching the end of their resources in manpower. It would become very dangerous, however, if the Germans were heavily reinforced by the Italians.

The drive on Paris has reached the outer suburbs but the Germans are slowing their pace somewhat in that area, awaiting the development of their major plan of encirclement. The main objective of the Germans is not the capture of Paris but the annihilation of the Allied forces. Weygand's tactics now are to escape slowly while inflicting the maximum damage on the Germans to weaken them and slow up their drive. Should the German offensive become hesitant through approaching exhaustion, that would be the time for a counter attack "miracle." But, signs of any such change in the situation are not yet apparent. If exhaustion comes to an attacking force, however, it gives little advance warning.

JAPAN WATCHES EAST INDIES

Tokyo Sifts Report Of British Troop Landings; London Denies Knowledge

TOKYO, (UP)—The foreign office today investigated reports that Great Britain had landed 2,000 troops in the Netherlands East Indies.

An investigation also was being made of reports that a Dutch naval plane had fired on a Japanese fishing boat between Belitong and Bangka Islands on June 6.

A foreign office spokesman said a "grave view" would be taken if the reports were substantiated.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi said in a dispatch from Sourabaya, Java, that 2,000 British were secretly stationed in the small village of Neu-aw, north of Ion.

Knowledge Denied

LONDON, (UP)—A foreign office spokesman said today he had no knowledge of the reported landing of British troops in the Netherlands East Indies.

Official Dutch quarters in London denied any knowledge of the troop movements. They said Dutch authorities had not invoked British protection in view of the assurances given by the Japanese government that no action would be taken against the Dutch possessions.

Fruit Marketing Change Favored

Amendments Approved By Vote Of 80 Per Cent Of Growers, Studt Reveals

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—Amendments to the federal marketing agreement for California Bartlett pears, plums and Elberta peaches were tentatively approved in a referendum by more than 80 per cent of the growers voting, it was announced today by Ward B. Studt, division of marketing and marketing agreements of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Studt said final results of the referendum, including all ballots, will be forwarded to the secretary of agriculture at Washington. In addition to a two-thirds favorable grower vote, a sign-up of growers representing 67 per cent of the fruit shipped by signers of the original agreement is required before the secretary of agriculture can give the amendments final approval.

40-YEAR-OLD CAGE IN USE AT KELSEY MINES

The Marshall Milling and Mining Company is using an historical steel cage on the Big Sandy and Grey Eagle gold mining claims near Kelsey, says a Sacramento report.

The cage was found at the bottom of an old abandoned shaft. It had been there since the early '90s when the shaft last was worked.

The history of the mine reveals the cage was brought to the property from the old Pioneer Mine in Amador county. Despite the heavy coat of rust covering it when it was found, the cage has been cleaned and put back into use.

E. M. Cooper, superintendent of the mine, believes the cage was made in England.

Communist Aide Loses His Vote

State Secretary Of Party Deprived Of Citizenship In Federal Court Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—Through a decision of far-reaching significance, William Schneiderman, 34-year old California state secretary of the communist party was today deprived of his citizenship.

Federal Judge Michael J. Roche in an opinion on file today, upheld contention of the United States government that Schneiderman had "illegally and fraudulently obtained his citizenship" in Los Angeles on June 10, 1927.

United States Attorney Frank Hennessy said he thought the decision was "based on sound law." George Anderson, one of Schneiderman's attorneys said "of course" it will be appealed.

Schneiderman is subject to deportation to his native Russia. Russia, however, must agree to accept him.

When Schneiderman applied for his citizenship, he failed to state he had been a member of the Young Workers League of America and the Workers Party of America, Judge Roche held. These organizations, the opinion said, "were opposed to the principles of the constitution and advocated overthrow of this government by force and violence."

CHAPTER XXXVI

THE murderer stood there like a trapped beast, clutching his wounded hand. It was Frank Bitherbee.

When the excitement had died down, and when Dr. Straater had treated Bitherbee's wound, the triple murderer was locked up, with two men standing guard, to await the arrival of the police.

Jane and Kirby repaired to the living room to talk things over. "Bruce," said Jane, "how did you find out it was Bitherbee? What was the evidence you spoke of—the evidence that made him go for his gun?"

"A marriage certificate," said Kirby. "He and Audrey were secretly married a few weeks ago. I guessed it when Castian told me that Audrey had tried to make a will assigning her inheritance rights to some one, after her father had received that note threatening her life."

"Oh!" said Jane. "So Bitherbee killed Mr. Harding so that Audrey, his wife, would inherit the island, with its treasure, and he could get his hands on it?"

"That's it," said Kirby. "But was Audrey in on the plot?"

"No—I'm sure she didn't know anything about it. Didn't you see how stupid she was when we nabbed Bitherbee? Poor girl!"

"BUT I don't see why Bitherbee killed Santrey and Drumm," said Jane.

"Because they shared the secret of the treasure with him, and might give damaging testimony against him in regard to the death. But if he killed them off so that nobody knew about the treasure he could pretend to discover it after Emery's death, and it wouldn't be connected with the murder."

"What happened was this. Santrey found the map and cipher showed them to Bitherbee, who translated the cipher and found out about the treasure. Drumm about it, too. Probably originally the three of them planned to steal it and share it, cashing in on it by selling the jewels one by one as they did the ruby to Emery."

Then, Bitherbee figured out this plot, whereby he could get the whole treasure through his wife.

"He planned his murders for this week-end because there would be a number of people here on whom he could throw suspicion. First, as soon as Castian got here he secretly used Castian's typewriter to write that silly note about the ruby being stolen by Varanus. This was to open up an outside angle in the deaths to come—to throw suspicion on a mysterious Easterner."

"Thursday afternoon, Emery and Madame LeRoux took Straater and Castian and their wives to Portland. Bitherbee and Audrey remained here on the island. Yet the note threatening her life was mailed in Portland Thursday afternoon. I figure that Bitherbee gave that note to Captain Santrey, who innocently took it to Portland, and mailed it, little knowing its dire contents. And there was Bitherbee with an alibi."

"Originally I think he planned to kill them all with that pistol of his. But a new possibility presented itself. By means of a telephone call during the week, when he posed as Dr. Straater, he learned that Toler was bringing the deadly snake venom and he thought it was barely possible that he could pass off the murders as accidents—you know snake-bite."

"At any rate, he stole the venom from Toler, took a hypo needle from Straater's effects, and chose a time when most of us had no alibis. He met Santrey on the beach, knocked him over the head, jabbed the needle into his leg and shot in the venom. Then, in leaving the scene, he simulated a limp in the sand, throwing suspicion on Dr. Toler."

"BUT when Drumm was killed—"

Jane began. "That was foolhardy on Bitherbee's part," Kirby remarked, "to walk out of the house and shoot Drumm like that when nearly every one else had an alibi. But the boldness of it averted suspicion from him at first. However, he had to leave the gun on the scene, for fear we might find it on him."

"When did he get the gun back?" Jane asked.

"He must have found it on the terrace, where he dropped it at the time he threw the knife at Ludwig from the terrace—while you and I were on the veranda," Jane nodded. "What about the attack on Mr. Harding?"

"Simple," said Kirby. "Bitherbee simply saw his opportunity and took it. Emery, Toler, Straater, Bitherbee and I were all looking for Ah Lee. Bitherbee crept upon Emery, knocked him on the head, and jabbed the hypo needle home. But Emery had seen him, so when Emery began to mend, after the injection of serum, Bitherbee had to make sure of finishing the job before Emery came to and talked. Hence, he took his silence and shot both Emery and me from the terrace."

"Why write that second threatening note?" asked Jane. "The one we found in Mr. Harding's room?"

"Castian wrote it. At the dinner table, he had heard about the ruby and the first threatening note, and gave him the idea of trying to get the ruby himself by writing a similar note. Then, later, he overheard you and me on the veranda, talking about the treasure, and he decided to try to get his hands on that by searching Santrey's and Drumm's pockets for a map."

"YOU know," said Jane, "as a matter of record, it was I who first suggested that it might be Bitherbee who had attacked Mr. Harding. I said he might be after the money Audrey would inherit. Remember?"

"You should have stuck to your guns," said Kirby. "and we'd have caught him sooner."

"It was you who threw me off," she accused, "by saying Audrey's money would be in trust, to protect her from fortune hunters. Bitherbee nearly got me, at that. When I left you and went back to my room to await your screams, he was hiding in the room and assaulted me to get the map. I'd translated the cipher, you see."

JANE'S eyes were wide. "But why didn't he kill you, as he had the others?"

"I guess he was getting jittery by that time—he had had about enough of murder. Also, he apparently banked upon my affection for you. He told me that he would kill you next if I didn't stop prying."

Jane laughed. "So—loving me with all your heart, you went right ahead with your plan! Why, Bruce!"

"I know, darling," Kirby said grinning shamefacedly, "but I had him on ice then."

He slipped an arm around her, bent his head, and kissed her.

From outside, there suddenly came a thunderous roar. Jane started.

Kirby grinned. "The plane. Benet is taking her off. Fifty-three miles to Portland. He ought to be back here with the police in two hours. Thank heavens, Jane, from then on it'll be their headache."

"Yes," she smuggled against him and sighed contentedly.

Betty Crocker KITCHEN CLINIC

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
Mountain Democrat—Betty Crocker Home Service Department

ON A COOL SHADY PORCH

A hot day—a blazing sun—and then the cool darkness of a vine-covered porch on the shady side of the house where there are comfortable easy chairs—and the music of tinkling ice announcing the arrival of a frosty fruit drink. Doesn't that sound restful and refreshing? But just what are we going to put into those glasses of tinkling ice, that will live up to all these promises? Lemonade, perhaps. But we'd like to have it a distinctive and out-of-the-ordinary drink. So why not try a pineapple lemonade? It's wonderfully refreshing and delightful.

PINEAPPLE LEMONADE

2 quarts water (8 cups)
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 cups crushed pineapple
1 cup lemon juice
1 quart ice water (4 cups)
1 bunch fresh mint (1 sprig for each glass)

Combine 2 quarts of water and sugar in saucepan. Boil for 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Add crushed pineapple and lemon juice. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving, add 1 quart ice water. Serve with ice and a garnish of mint. This will make 10 glasses.

Or perhaps you've decided to serve your lunch or supper out on the porch some sweltering night and you are going to serve iced tea for your beverage. Here is something a bit different in iced tea.

MINTED LEMON ICED TEA

2 quarts water
1 to 1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup black tea
1 bunch fresh mint (1 sprig for each glass)
Juice of 4 lemons

Combine 1 quart of the water and the sugar in a saucepan. Boil until it makes a nice syrup (about 10 minutes). Remove from heat. Add tea and mint. Let stand 15 minutes. Strain. Add the remaining 1 quart water and lemon juice. Cover, and set away to chill.

It "Keeps"

One of the nice things about this tea is that you can pour it into bottles and store it in the refrigerator. You'll find that it will keep for three or four days.

It makes iced tea to fill 8 large glasses.

And here is another delightful iced tea variation that we shall call Sparkling Iced Tea.

SPARKLING ICED TEA

Simply blend together 1 quart of gingerale and 2 quarts of iced tea. Pour into tall glasses partially filled with ice. Serve with sugar, generous slices of lemon and a sprig of mint.

Grape Juice Crush is a really elegant "company" cold drink.

GRAPE JUICE CRUSH

2 cups grape juice
1 cup orange juice
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
2 cups water
4 cups gingerale (1 quart)

Mix fruit juices, sugar and water and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add gingerale and serve immediately in glasses partially filled with cracked ice. This will make enough to fill 10 to 12 glasses.

"Fifth Column" Suspects Interned in Britain

Files of armed soldiers escort this great parade of aliens to internment camps in a town in northern England as Britain rounds up thousands of men and women suspected of being in the "Fifth Column." Britain is taking no chances with aliens since German conquest of Norway and the Low Countries was materially assisted by Nazi sympathizers.

RED CROSS PRESSES WAR RELIEF DRIVE WITH WENTWORTH CHAIRMAN

National Red Cross officials have stated that it is not likely that an additional request for assistance will be made this year. It is also pointed out that the American Red Cross is only sharing in the war relief work and is not attempting to carry the entire load and that of the money raised, most of it will be spent in the United States for supplies while fifteen per cent of the money raised is spent in the home community for supplies to be used by the local Red Cross chapter in production for war relief.

This is a work which is being conducted in El Dorado County under the guidance of Mrs. Edith Rantz, production chairman for the chapter, who is being assisted by a group of thirty women of the community. Mrs. Rantz and her co-workers meet each Thursday afternoon at the guild hall of the Episcopal church and are working on dresses and sweaters and layettes which will be sent to war-torn countries to assist in the relief undertaking.

Any woman who wishes to assist in this work may meet with the group on Thursday afternoons, or may become advised in detail concerning the production program by communicating with Mrs. Rantz.

Pacific House To Have New Service Station

In response to the requirements of the increasing auto traffic both winter and summer over U. S. Route 50, Pacific House is building a new gasoline service station.

The resort has had a service station for some years and the new plant, of native timber and stone, is intended to permit Pacific House to serve its patrons and friends in the department more conveniently. The station is being erected near the site of the former station, immediately west of the main resort development.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. McMurray entertained at dinner Friday evening, having as their guests the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Dolan, and Mrs. McMurray's aunt, Mrs. Grace Zimmerman.
